

Procurement, Contract Management & Section 3

July 24- 25, 2013, Chestnut Ridge Resort, Blairsville, PA

This seminar focuses on HUD's handbook 7460.8 Rev 2, which includes essential information for PHAs to comply with HUD regulations. Understanding the handbook and how it relates to project-based accounting, budgeting and management will help delegate more procurement responsibility to your sites. By the end of the seminar, you should understand how to obtain the highest quality goods and services for the right cost, delivered on time and in compliance with applicable laws and policies. In addition, you can learn to estimate costs of goods and services, develop criteria for analyzing proposals, and save costs in your procurement operation. The seminar also includes a special section on implementing Sec. 3 programs.

Understanding the handbook and how to implement it makes sure you know: what is mandatory; important definitions, including micro purchase, intended to "drill down" procurement to the site; ways to simplify and streamline requirements to encourage more decentralized procurement; and have guidance on ethics in procurement and contract management

The seminar will be taught by Jay Ortenza, Nan McKay Associates, who has over 34 years housing experience in both public and private sectors. He recently conducted expansive inspection training for the Philadelphia Housing Authority as part of their MTW initiatives. He also assisted the Chicago Housing Authority with a complete rewrite of their Housing Quality Standards inspections manual.
